Our physicians take a proactive approach, working with each patient to develop a personalized treatment plan. As members of the UCI Health Chao Family Comprehensive Cancer Center, the only Orange County-based National Cancer Institute-designated comprehensive cancer center, they also lead clinical trials that give our patients access to new therapies well before they are available elsewhere.

Maternal-Fetal Medicine

As many as 10% of pregnancies are considered high risk, but 95% of these cases result in the birth of healthy babies with expert care. Our UCI Health maternal-fetal obstetricians are leaders in caring for high-risk expectant mothers and their babies. Our high-risk obstetrics team offers a comprehensive program of services to protect both mother and child during pregnancy, labor and immediately after birth. These conditions may include gestational diabetes, high blood pressure, multiple births, a history of miscarriage and symptoms of premature labor. This continuum of coordinated care — from pregnancy through neonatal care and beyond — has earned UCI Health some of the best outcomes in the nation for managing complicated pregnancies.
